

Annual Plan to set core work

Councillors will soon begin the first of several workshops to draft an Annual Plan and budget for 2026-27.

The draft plan will outline Council's activities and projects for the 12 months from July and focus on essential work like drinking water, wastewater treatment and roading.

Mayor Liz McMillan said Council would be busy in the new financial year delivering those core services, and other projects.

"The second bridge is now under way and we'll have to confirm our contribution to that project, and Council is also introducing a new food and greenwaste kerbside collection in September.

"We know that other important work will need to be done too, and we'll hear more details in these coming workshops."

Charges for drinking water, wastewater and stormwater have already been signalled as part of the Water Services Delivery Plan that Council was required to prepare and submit to Government last year as part of the Local Water Done Well programme.

Under that delivery plan, the combined water charges for those in serviced urban areas would rise from $1490 this year to around $1670 for 2026-27.

Council is planning to spend about $26 million on water projects, to ensure it complies with new national rules – this includes $3.7m on water meters, $4m on water main renewals, $5.4m on irrigation for the Ocean Farm wastewater facility and $3.7m for wastewater pipe renewals.

Mayor McMillan said the Long Term Plan had forecast an average 11 per cent rates increase for 2026-27, but Councillors would be looking to trim that where they could, without running down levels of service the community expected.

"Our challenges are that Council is not immune to the same cost of living increases as the person who lives down the street and has a mortgage, uses electricity and pays insurance. We will focus on the core work, like water services, roads, and rubbish, because this maintains a solid platform for families and businesses, and we will make savings where we can or consider deferring work."

The Draft Annual Plan workshops are planned for Tuesday 3 February and Tuesday 10 February and these are open to the public.

Final stage of demolition due to start

Pipework insulation that contained asbestos was discovered underground at the former Polytech site on Cameron Street, delaying the final stage of demolition of the old classroom block.

Group Manager of Business Support Helen

Barnes said the additional asbestos find was discovered within the immediate vicinity of the old block.

"This pipework enters the old boiler room and appears to branch off to feed the heating system at Balmoral Hall. Asbestos removalists will begin removal in the first week of February.

"Finds like this are not unusual when sites are being redeveloped and we have to deal with past contamination in a responsible way."

The former Polytech site is being levelled for use as a carpark and available for the public's use from the beginning of April.

Annual Plan work underway

It's hard to believe the first month of the year has passed by already.

Council work is now underway with annual plan workshops, during which we are reviewing the budget for the upcoming financial year. We also have workshops on local government reforms and bylaws, alongside our regular council meetings.

Our annual plan workshops are a chance for Councillors to ask questions on the proposed budget, and balance out money we spend on our services with the level of service we provide.

We require rates that help Council deliver the services our community expects, but we must also keep in mind what ratepayers can realistically be expected to pay.

I would like to extend my congratulations to our two local King's honours recipients. Both Don Geddes and Andy Macfarlane have each contributed many years of dedicated service in their respective fields, and our district is better off as the result of their efforts.

Outstanding contributions can often go unrecognised, which is why I am looking forward to celebrating with our local business community at the ANZ Business of the Year Awards next month. This event provides an important opportunity to acknowledge the incredible businesses operating within our district.

Later this year Council will also be holding its own

Community

Honours Awards, to recognise those who have made outstanding local contributions to the district. A new category will be for environmental champions and this will celebrate and recognise landowners and community members who have shown a big commitment to conservation, restoration and environmental initiatives.

With school going back over the next week, it surely must be time for some warmer, sunny weather. My thoughts go out to everyone who has been affected by the severe weather events, particularly those in the North Island.

SHORT AND SWEET

CEMETERY GATES

The entrance gates at the Mt Somers cemetery have been given a makeover, with a new black powder coating. The gates were originally forged by the Christchurch Foundry and believed to have come from the original Mt Somers cemetery, which opened in 1883.

Board backs Line Rd as refuse facility site

The Methven Community Board supports using the Line Road recycling facility as the most appropriate site for a future Methven Refuse Transfer Station.

This followed an independent assessment of potential sites in October 2025 by Tonkin and Taylor.

Group Manager of Infrastructure Neil McCann said that selecting the most suitable site location has been under consideration for several years.

“That’s why we commissioned an independent assessment which now shows clearly that the Line Road site has several advantages, including lower contamination risk and remediation cost, favourable geotechnical conditions and better access to existing services.”

The report also showed Line Road posed fewer transport-related constraints, and a more straightforward planning and consenting process.

“The site’s current use as a recycling centre, and its location in a business zoned area, makes it the most straight-forward option, and the future site will include the neighbouring paddock which is owned by Council.”

Funding for the Methven Refuse Transfer Station development will now be considered in the next Long Term Plan 2027-37.

The Methven Community Board held its first meeting of 2026 this week and agreed to trial livestreaming future meetings. The next community board meeting is 9am on Monday 9 March and will available on Council's Facebook page.

New aerators for Methven wastewater

The Methven Wastewater Treatment Plant will have six ageing aerators replaced, and a new inlet screen before winter this year.

Group Manager of Infrastructure Neil McCann said that the aerators are scheduled to be replaced as they reach the end of their operational life.

“The current units will be swapped out for two modern aerdisc directional aerators, to improve the plant’s efficiency and reliability into the future.”

The contract for the aerator replacement has been awarded to Aeris Global Limited, the same company that installed seven directional aerators at Ashburton’s Wilkins Road wastewater treatment plant in 2024.

The inlet screen contract has been awarded to a partnership between ARC Projects and Brown Brothers.

“The new inlet screen will remove large, non-biodegradable solids and debris from incoming sewage.

“It will protect our pumps and substantially reduce our solid waste handling and maintenance costs.

“The equipment reduces water content, which brings our tonnage to landfill down considerably.”

The total cost of all the wastewater treatment plant works was budgeted for $460,000 in the 2024-34 Long Term Plan.
